McKINLEY AND WILSON ABROAD.

In 1890 William McKinley was burned in effigy in the English manufacturing city of Sheffield; but in 1894 William L. Wilson was dined and wined in London because he is the author of a Free-trade Tariff Bill. These are significant facts.

REPUBLICAN DELEGATION NINTH DISTRICT.

Pursuant to Rule 19 of the "Rules of the Republican Organization of Kentucky," a meeting of the Republican Delegates of the Ninth Congressional District will be held in Convention Hall, Louisville, Ky., June 5th, 1886, at 10 o'clock a. m., in Hall "C," third floor. Prompt attendance of the delegates at said bour is important and desired.

ED. DAUM, Chairman Ninth Congressional District. Brookville, Ky., May 23d, 1895.

W. H. HARVEY, author of Coin's imaginary Financial School, engaged in a debate at Chicago with Professor Mc-

· Coin's Real Debate. LAUGHLIN, who took the sound money side of the question. The former advocated the free coinage of silver by the United States, at 16 to 1 ratio, independent of action by other powers. The Commercial Gazette thinks the whole of Harvey's contention can be fairly summed up in these words: "The United States is big enough to keep gold and silver at par with each other."

Well, the Latin Union was not big enough to maintain free coinage at the time of German demonetization. "You could not expect us to keep it up," they said, "when Germany was sending its Billy Cappellar, of Mansfield, who has always been one of Gov. Foraker's henchmen, came in Sunday night and thousand millions of dollars? These change." In the conference of 1878, this was the position taken by France, and it

When Mr. HARVEY said that in the event of the adoption of free coinage by the United States we should have France on our side, he said that which he could not know. French finances have been conducted with great skill, and if France saw an opportunity to get rid of two or three hundred millions of silver at a price double what that silver is worth in the markets of the world, we should be afraid that she would improve the opportunity, just as Germany took advantage of the free coinage policy of the Latin Union. No, we would not trust France if subjected to such temptation.

After France Mr. HARVEY mentions as countries that would help us those on the Western Hemisphere and China and Japan.

Let us take Mexico alone. Mexican dollars contain a little more silver than the United States dollar, and they exchange at the rate of two for one, because up to this time the United States has succeeded in keeping its silver dollar at par with gold. Now, suppose the United States adopts the free coinage policy. Mr. Mexico would send to this country 1,000 Mexican dollars or a thousand dollars' worth of silver bullion to be coined into $1,000. Then Mr. Mexico would take back to "his ain countree" the $1,000 in fair, shining, unused, unabraded United States coin, and, bless you, what a scramble there would be to get the bright, pretty coin. They give discussing this question? two dollars of Mexican money now for one dollar of American money, and they would give 2,000 Mexican dollars, or two thousand dollars' worth of silver bullion, for these 1,000 United States dollars, and thank Uncle Sam for his kindness thinking the while what a great fool he was. The $2,000 of Mexican money would be brought to our Mints, recoined, taken back to Mexico, and with it 4,000 Mexican dollars would be bought. And the 4,000 Mexican dollars For Sale! received into 4,000 American dollars would buy 8,000 Mexican dollars. So the process would go on. The "endless chain" of the President would be nothing

Then the mines-into what tremendons activity would they start! In 1873 he total world product of silver in ounces was 62,572,004. In 1894 it had risen to 149,100,000, notwithstanding the price had split in two, declining from an average of sixty pence to an average of 28 15-16 pence. Suppose the prices were restored by this country alone to 60 pence, or $1 29, who so blind as not to see the effects of the advance? In 1894 the silver product outside the United States was over 100,000,000 ounces. Double this price and you double the rewards of the mine-owners. Doubled, did you say? Much more than doubled. For if silver can be profitably mined at 28 pence an ounce-and the business would not be continued if it were not profitable-all above 28 pence is clean velvet.

Thus all the vast stores of silver that have been accumulated through the slowmoving centuries, and all the vast stores that are still hidden in explored and unexplored mines, will be at the service of your Uncle Samuel if he wants to go it

-Oh! pooh! What's the use in saying even so much? Doesn't every man who stops to take counsel of his own common sense know that he who undertakes to pay a double price for any article will find a world tide setting towards him? Why take leave of all our leases in

We can go on to a silver basis if we choose to. We can go with Mexico and China and India if we desire. But do we desire? We can cut ourselves off from civilization if we want to. But do we

Mr. HARVEY is a silver monometallist. We see not the slightest hope, not one ray of light, in that direction. Rather do we see folly, ending in disaster.

The Impending Loss of Thirty Million Dollars

In Revenue Through the Unconstitutionality of the Income Law

Causes Trouble to the Government Officials Proposed Increased Levy on Tobacco to Help Out the Deficit-An Increase Also on Beer, Spirits and Lead.

CHICAGO, May 28.-A prominent Washington man said at the Palmer ouse Monday night: "The impending loss of $30,000,000 n revenue through the failure of the ncome tax to be declared constitutional is causing the national solons very serious concern-so much so, in fact, that occasions are never lost for informal discussions as to the best measures for relief.

"Of the various plans suggested to help meet the deficiency, the one that meets with the greatest amount of favor is a restoration of the chewing and smoking tobacco tax to the figures that obtained before the McKinley day. bill made the reduction. It had been eight cents, but it is now six. Eight cents per pound on the annual production of 300,000,000 pounds added $24,000,000 to the treasury. Under the skiff to fish, and when only twenty the McKinley bill the 6-cent tax feet from the shore the boat overbrought the aggregate down to $18,-000,000, or a loss of $6,000,000 a year in revenue. Should the former figures be restored, then one-fifth of the expected deficiency will have been provided for. The legislators are also talking of an additional tax on beer, spirits and

NO STAMPEDE.

At Least That's The Way it Looks Just at Present.

ZANESVILLE, O., May 28.-It looked Monday morning as though the opposition to the expected stampede for Bushnell, or anybody else, would be too strong for it to materialize. In order to the plunder of the United States for it to succeed the movement would have to draw from the avowed candidates who are known to be Foraker men, for Bushnell, under the circumstances, could not expect to get any strength from the administration people. While Nash is undoubtedly in the lead, it is predicted in many quarters ture the nomination. The talk about him comes largely from Nash's friends, for Poe. He declared openly against any stampede to Bushnell or anybody

The Nash forces are alarmed, however, by the talk of a stampede to Bushnell, and it is understood that they held a conference and decided to prevent it at all hazards. Just what they propose to do is a secret, but there is no doubt that a part of the programme is to force a nomination among the men who are avowed candidates. It is said that they would consent to the choice of any of the number, if thereby a stampede to Bushnell could be prevented.

Attempted Murder and Suicids. OBERLIN, O., May 28. - Willy Worces ter Monday morning attempted to kill his wife and then himself. Both of them are now lying at death's door.

They had been quarreling all night, and Worcester went to her room Monday morning, and, throwing the children out of bed, began striking her with his fist. Then he got a ball club and a razor. He clubbed the woman until he thought her dead, and then going into another room cut his own throat twice. He soon fell to the floor, and, dipping his finger in his own blood, "good by" on the floor. He then carefully laid the razor away. His throat is badly cut, one gash going clear to his windpipe, several arteries being severed.
